Ike Still Pushed

'Non-Partisan' Draft Urged

WASHINGTON, July 7—Anti-Truman Democrats drove today for a "non-partisan" presidential draft for Gen. Dwight Eisenhower in a last-ditch "Stop Truman" strategy despite the general's "could-not-accept" statement.

One Dixie Democratic senator said privately that the group hopes that the move—if it does not bring Eisenhower into the race—will at least block the President's nomination on the first ballot and give administration foes another chance to defeat him.

Mr. Truman returned to Washington last night from Bolivar, Mo., confident that he will be named on the first ballot at the Democratic national convention which opens in Philadelphia Monday.

Meanwhile, Sen. Pepper, (D) Fla., announced all-out support of James Roosevelt's proposal to draft Eisenhower as a "national unity" candidate despite the general's statement and his later comment that "I don't know how I could have made my intentions any clearer."

PEPPER AND Sen. Johnston, (D) S. C., busied themselves in their offices helping Roosevelt line up delegates for the "anti-Truman caucus" Saturday planned by Roosevelt and such party leaders as Jacob Arvey of Chicago and Former Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City.

Pepper called on the Democratic Party to relinquish its claims to Eisenhower and to name him on the basis of giving him a free hand to become a "national president," write his own platform and pick his cabinet.

Observers Claim Democrat Bosses Killed Ike Boom

NEW YORK, July 7—What really caused Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower to puncture the Democratic presidential boom in his name was the rush of old-line Democratic machine bosses to hitch their political wagons to his star.

Out of the maze of confusion and contradictory interpretations placed upon the general's statement Monday night, that much was definitely and conclusively verified today.

Until the sudden flurry of pro-Eisenhower statements began to emanate over the weekend from such Democratic machine bosses as Frank Hague of Jersey City and Jacob M. Arvey, successor to Former Mayor Edward J. Kelly as boss of the Democratic organization in Chicago, the general had decided to say nothing about the latest boom in his favor.

He had virtually closed the door in his last refusal statement issued Jan. 23 in an open letter to one of his most ardent supporters—Leonard V. Finder, publisher of The Manchester Evening Leader.

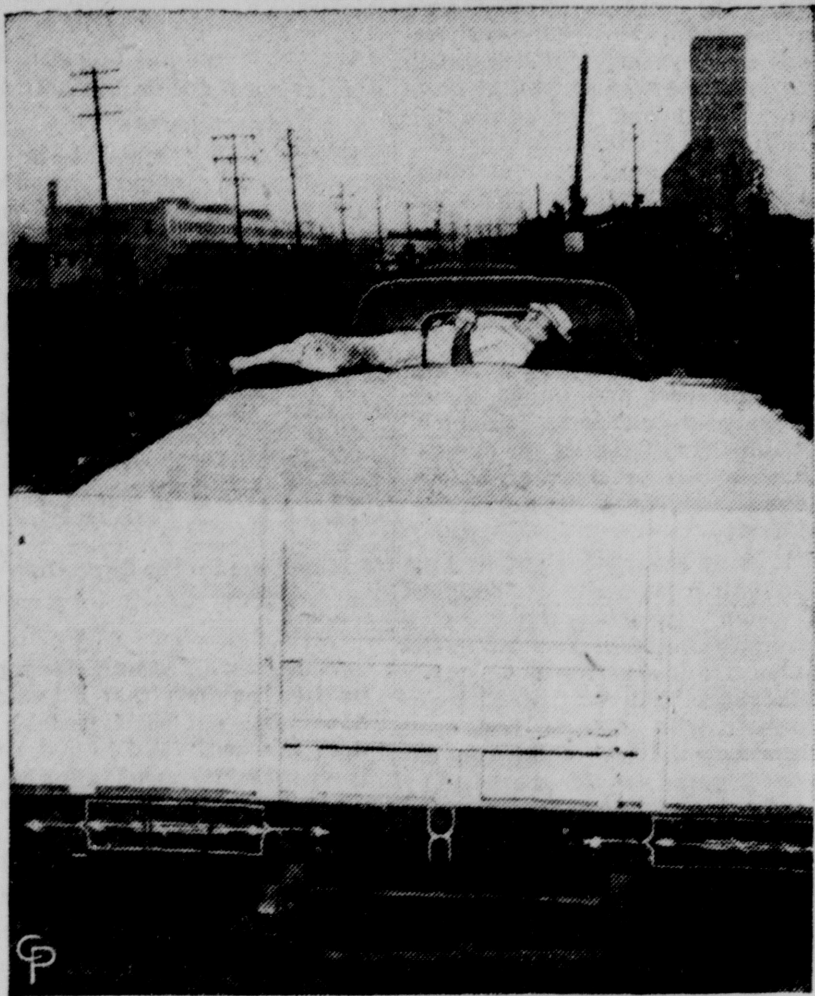

BUT AT THAT time it was the GOP nomination that was at issue. He had left a very slight opening in the door. Since then many political events had transpired—and a genuine boom had begun to take hold of the

If the Democrats can't get Eisenhower they'll take Douglas. If they can't get Douglas, they'll take Lincoln.

He won't accept. Campaign button makers are painting hair on Stassen buttons and calling them Eisenhower. This will be denied.

It should be, it isn't true. Truman tells friends he will quit if he can take the yacht back to Missouri with him. That isn't true either. But it's a thought.

UNEXPECTEDLY HIGH YIELD of wheat in Kansas this year is jamming Kansas City grain terminals. This weary driver is sleeping atop his 1,500-bushel load after waiting six hours in a 100-truck line. The state's crop may reach 185,000,000 bushels—but still far short of last year's bumper crop of 287,000,000 bushels.

FIRE BELL TO BE PROBED

3 New Traffic Lights Authorized For City

The mayor's suggestion of a 100-watt light in Kroger alley Tuesday night resulted in Circleville council approving three new traffic lights on Pickaway street and an investigation of the city hall fire bell.

City Solicitor George Gerhardt first told councilmen of the urgent need for a traffic signal at the corner of Franklin and Pickaway streets.

At the same time, he said, parking on the corners of the two streets should be held back far enough to permit a through driver to see oncoming cars "without having to stop halfway in the intersection."

Ray Anderson took the floor next and exclaimed, "since we're on the subject, how about another traffic light on Pickaway street at Franklin street?"

"And one at Mound and Pickaway streets, too," Boyd Horn cried.

BY NOW, council virtually had approved new lights at a cost of $474, figuring each light at $158 each.

A flasher light at the Forest cemetery entrance also came under consideration, but Gerhardt pointed out that if council approves it the cost will run over $500 and before approval is granted the city must advertise for bids.

The cemetery light was abandoned until next meeting. Council then directed Gerhardt to draw up the necessary ordinances covering the release of funds for the new lights and vir-

'Gray Market' Steelmen Hit

WASHINGTON, July 7—A House investigating committee chairman predicted today that the government will collect hundreds of thousands of dollars from "gray market" steel operators who have evaded income taxes.

Rep. Macy, (R) N. Y., head of a special public works subcommittee, disclosed that investigators have sent specific information to Internal Revenue Bureau agents concerning more than a dozen "gray market" brokers and salesmen who failed to file income tax returns from "under the table" cash transactions.

The New York congressman asserted that numerous postwar brokers and steel firms which capitalized on the steel shortage have abandoned the market since his group opened hearings last session.

Macy declared that "in the Detroit area alone the number of fly-by-night brokers and operators who advertised in trade journals for scarce steel has fallen off tremendously."

Meanwhile, Service Director Joseph Rooney reported that lights for intersections at Walnut and Court streets and Scioto and Main streets had arrived from the Simplex Light (Continued on Page Two)

Council Silent On Idea Of New 2-Way Radio

It will cost the city of Circleville about $2,800 to purchase a two-way radio system and have it installed for the city police department.

City council Tuesday night, however, took no affirmative action on the proposal made last meeting by Mayor Thurman I. Miller and delegated an investigation into the radio system with the finance committee.

Joe Hogan of Columbus, representative for the Motorola Corp., appeared before the solons to give them the "inside" on all matters relative to purchasing and installing his company's equipment in the police station and the two patrol cars.

Emphasis was placed on the growing need for added protection because Circleville is rapidly expanding in industry. Hogan told the councilmen about 30 Ohio cities and towns had installed the two-way system in the last year.

INSTALLING two-way radio would require a restricted radio operator's license for the officer on duty at the station, a Federal Communications Commission license and a permit from the Police Communications Association.

Hogan assured the councilmen, however, that the licenses were a matter of form and entails very little red tape.

He said an 80-foot antennae here would give the city a service radius of approximately 20 miles to all mobile units and triple that distance to stationary units such as exist in cities.

Czechs Arrested By Commie Cops

PRAGUE, July 7—Scores of persons were reported held in custody in Prague today by Communist-controlled security police who broke up an anti-government demonstration in the main square of the Czech capital.

Those arrested after police charged into a crowd of some 3,000 and suppressed the demonstrators with clubs were estimated variously at between 100 and 200.

Some 300 security police moved into Wenceslas Square shortly before midnight to halt the demonstration which followed an earlier sokol festival where cheers were shouted for Former President Eduard Benes.

Specific charges on which the demonstrators were arrested were not disclosed.

Montgomery Gets Vacant Seat In Circleville Council

42 Vote Favors Doctor; Graham Is Only Other Name Nominated

Dr. E. L. Montgomery of 110 Seyfert avenue Tuesday night was elected 42 by Circleville city council to fill the unexpired term of John Eshelman who resigned his post last council meeting.

The new first ward councilman's only opposition on a nomination ballot was Charles Graham who lacked seven votes in the city election last November of defeating Eshelman.

Robert Adkins nominated Montgomery who was elected on the first ballot defeating Graham. Had council been unable to reach a decision, a statutory appointment would have been made by Mayor Thurman I. Miller.

Council has 30 days to elect a new member. At the end of that time the appointment falls on the mayor. Before next council would have convened, the legislative body's term would have been up.

BESIDE HORN'S vote, which would naturally have followed his nomination of Graham, it was not disclosed who cast the remaining vote for the defeated candidate on the secret ballot.

Montgomery was elected Pickaway County coroner in 1940, but before he could take office he was given a commission in the Army. Montgomery's term as coroner expired before his discharge from the armed service.

The new councilman served with the Ohio 37th Division and was discharged from the medical corps as a lieutenant colonel.

Eshelman tendered his letter of resignation to council last meeting. He said extended business commitments forced him to vacate his public office.

New Water System Eyed

Council Told Of Future Plan

Only one ordinance was presented Tuesday night for action by Circleville city council in a bill which transferred $450 from the general fund to the water department for an investigation of the old water main across the Scioto river west of town.

However, council was briefed by Ervin Leist, water department manager, on an ordinance to come before the chamber next meeting which will deal with the installation of a new one-million gallon per day water gallery.

Council passed unanimously the amendment to the annual appropriation which will allow for an expenditure to the R. E. Goetz firm of Baltic to investigate the main-line river crossing.

Leist said the old crossing never has been used since it was damaged in the 1913 flood. The Goetz engineers will complete their work in about three days and recommend to the city whether the line can be repaired or a new one should be installed.

THE ENGINEERS are expected to use a compressed air device to determine the weak spots in the line and determine the number of underwater breaks. Work on the line will begin Monday, Leist told council. Actual operation costs were estimated at $300. All unused money (Continued on Page Two)

Tractor Takes Collision Only As Jaunt Booster

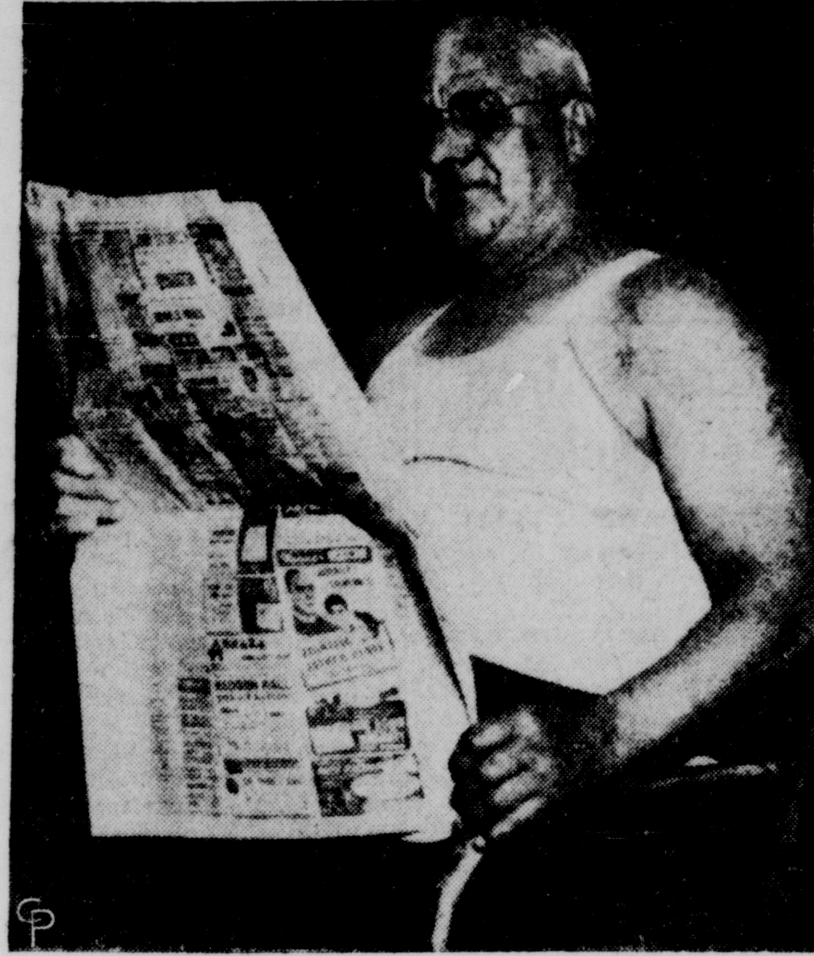

A runaway farm tractor Tuesday evening crashed through two fences, plowed unguided through a 15-acre wheat field and came to a stop against a pole after the driver was knocked from his seat in a highway collision.

The tractor operator, John N. Strawser, 35, of Grove City Route 1, escaped with only scratches and bruises after being dragged across a ditch while clinging to the tractor's tow-bar.

The accident occurred about 5 p. m. Tuesday evening two miles north of Circleville on Route 23 when a car driven by Arthur C. Tatman, 47, of Circleville Route 4 smashed into the rear of the slow-moving tractor.

Deputy Sheriff Vern L. Pontious said both vehicles were travelling south when Tatman attempted to pass Strawser. An oncoming car forced the auto back into the right lane and the car skidded on the slippery highway.

Jarred from his seat, Strawser clung to the tractor tow-bar until the vehicle was well off the highway before letting loose. The errant tractor, however, continued through a fence, across the Andrew Thomas wheat field, through a second fence and stalled against a pole.

ALBERT BASHION, 65, of Logans Ferry, near Pittsburgh, one of some 5,000 "captive" coal miners who did not return to pits from their annual 10-day vacation because steel companies have not signed contracts with captive mine workers, takes it easy in his back yard while government officials in Washington predict an anti-strike order will be sought in federal court to halt walkout.

Some Miners Drift Back To Pits, Others Striking

PITTSBURGH, July 7—The soft coal strike spread slightly in Western Pennsylvania today, but commercial miners in West Virginia and Ohio were going back to work after one day of idleness.

The gain in miners returning to work was believed to surpass the number leaving the pits today.

An estimated 80,000 men were off the job, some 35,000 of them commercial miners striking in sympathy with the "captives," who have no contract.

A total of some 27,000 "captive" diggers are out in the Western Pennsylvania region, and 15,000 commercial employees have joined them.

Cecil Urbaniak, Fairmont, W. Va., president of UMW District No. 31, said commercial miners in West Virginia are going back to work.

URBANIAK said messages were sent yesterday instructing some 12,000 commercial miners to return to their jobs "in fulfillment of their contract."

The steel industry, which owns the "captive" mines, has balked at signing the UMW contract as long as a union shop clause remains in it.

The two-day-old strike will force critical cutbacks in steel production if it is prolonged.

U. S. Steel announced it idled eight blast furnaces and 28 open hearths due to the strike. Production at the company's Bessemer works at Youngstown was slashed 59 percent.

Meanwhile, in Washington, a 24-hour delay was announced in government injunction action against the strike in steel company coal mines.

A statement issued by the office of Robert N. Denham, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, said: "We hope to complete out in (Continued on Page Two)

U.S. Ignores Russian Air Maneuvers

Aerial Supply Train Continues

BERLIN, July 7—The Russians launched a new "nerve war" today in an apparent effort to scare American and British fliers off the "air lift" corridor between blockaded Berlin and the West.

Air Force officials revealed that the Soviets are stepping up their campaign of attempted intimidation by repeated announcement of large-scale Russian fighter-plane maneuvers in the corridor.

Allied airmen showed little signs of scaring easily. An official announcement said that 390 separate transport flights of food, coal and other essentials have come rocketing into Berlin from Frankfurt and Wiesbaden in the 24 hours ending at noon today.

Officials said the Russians refuse to furnish detailed information regarding the so-called maneuvers except to say that a large number of planes will be operating at certain vicinities "between morning and late evening."

These officials added that very few Soviet planes actually have been sighted and that the maneuvers apparently are more bluff than fact.

It was revealed, however, that a Soviet Yak fighter buzzed a Dakota food transport in the corridor yesterday near Berlin. It was part of a Soviet fighter formation.

The Soviets seem to be trying to gain control of corridor traffic by insisting upon Allied adherence to tightly restrictive flight regulations which the Russians have presented to the Allied control authority for decision.

With coal-laden planes among the transports, a total of 209 British planes came into Berlin during the last 24 hours, while 181 American craft—more than half of them huge C-54s, made the trip.

Arab Chief Pulls A Gromyko, Walks Out On UN Talk

LAKE SUCCESS, July 7—Jamal El Hussein of the Arab Higher Committee walked out of the UN Security Council today in protest against the presence of an official representative of Israel.

The issue was precipitated when Dimitri Manuisky of the Ukraine, president of the 11-nation body, invited Aubrey S. Eban as spokesman "for Israel" to participate in the Palestine truce extension discussion instead of referring to him as the representative of the Jewish Agency.

Eight of the council members raised objections and denied the right of Manuisky to commit their governments to a tacit recognition of Israel.

Colombia alone remained silent, while Soviet Delegate Andrei Gromyko rushed to the rescue of Manuisky when the latter called a vote on the issue. (Continued on Page Two) ported but these may have been accidental. Air force officials say they were minor in nature. The Soviet-controlled newspaper Berliner Zeitung called today for a Big Four parley on the entire German problem and declared:

"If the German problem is solved the Berlin problem will no longer exist."

The possibility was seen meanwhile that the Russians may attempt curbs on the aerial lifeline of the Western Allies into Berlin.

The Russians charged that the United States is seeking to "infringe" unilaterally and arbitrarily on four-power air security regulations.

They coupled this statement with a warning that American flights over the Soviet-held corridor will be endangered if certain American proposals are carried out.

The proposals presumably referred to American plans to expand flight schedules still further in order to carry increasing amounts of supplies from the western occupation zone to Berlin.

An American note sent to the four-power air safety center in Berlin last Wednesday reportedly contained an explanation that, because of the large numbers of planes flying supplies, no individual notification will be given in the future on arrival of each separate plane.

Estate Accounts Are Filed Here

Final accounts on two estates have been listed and third approved by Judge Sterling M. Lamb in Pickaway County probate court.

Judge Lamb approved accounting on the V. F. Dailey estate as filed by L. B. Dailey, executor. His report revealed credits and disbursements were equal at $2,764.64.

A first and final account was filed on the estate of Mildred Haney by Jeanne Brannon, administratrix. Her accounting listed $6,325.59 each in receipts and disbursements.

The third partial and final account was filed by Rose A. Walters on the guardianship estate of Robert Walters showing $12.17 balance due the estate. The sum of $8,792.95 was listed as chargeable and $8,780.78 was credited to the account.

2 Minor Runs Made By Firemen

Circleville firemen were called out on two fires Tuesday afternoon, the second call reaching the firemen while they were still attending the first.

The first call came at 1:40 p. m. from the heating plant for the county jail behind the courthouse. Coal stored in a bin there had become overheated. No damage was reported and cause of the fire was believed to have been spontaneous combustion.

The other fire was reported at 2:35 p. m. Firemen said the blaze was a grass fire behind the Norfolk and Western Railway tower. No damage was caused by the blaze, and cause was undetermined.

Salflower Needs Little Rainfall

Salflower poses no serious question of competition with flax in humid areas where flax prospers. It seems to thrive in areas of less rainfall where normal precipitation is only 12 to 15 inches annually and where flax generally does not yield so well.

Normally, too, under "dryland" conditions, salflower does as well as wheat or better. It is resistant to most diseases and insects.

Co., and were ready for installation.

While council was affected with the chain reaction of approving traffic signals, Pete Clark, a council spectator, asked the solons why the fire department refuses to ring the city hall alarm.

Repairs on the bell and belfry atop city hall recently were completed which called for reinforcing some of the supporting timbers.

Main objection to ringing the fire bell was that it caused a vibrator, and endangered the collapse of the belfry or damage to the city building roof.

Ray Cook favored ringing the bell when an alarm was sounded but made a motion on the floor that a building inspector be contacted before council directs Fire Chief Talmer Wise to sound the bell signal.

COUNCILMAN Ray Anderson supported Cook's motion, but suggested that the inspector not be allowed to discuss the matter with anyone before making his recommendation. Anderson hinted there may be a reason why some people may not want the bell clanging with each fire alarm.

Boyd Horn disclaimed the building inspector motion and called for a special session of council so the members could climb to the belfry and make a personal investigation into the matter.

Council took Horn's suggestion with tongue-in-cheek and went on to second Cook's motion to have an inspector check the belfry. Rooney said he believed the structure would need some further repairs before it is safe to ring the bell.

Plans and specifications submitted by Burziss and Niple, Columbus engineers, outline a 400-foot underground water collection gallery which will add one-million gallons of water daily to the city's supply.

The gallery, which was explained to be nothing more than a horizontal well, will be an extension to the present collection system now in operation.

Specifications call for the tube to be 36-inches in diameter, to be constructed 20-foot underground. The present gallery collects nearly one-million gallons daily from water-bearing gravel, Leist said.

The ordinance will authorize the board of public utilities headed by J. F. Mader to advertise for bids on the project.

Leist said future plans on the water system involve a water softening plant and a new elevated storage tank in Circleville to provide water users with better service and fire protection.

ENGINEERS who are working on the plans recommend the new stand pipe to have a storage capacity of 400,000 to 500,000 gallons. Cost of the new gallery and future improvements will be covered by retiring mortgage revenue bonds, Leist disclosed.

The standpipe now in operation at the pump station site will undergo painting and repairs next year. A recent inspection of the 150-foot high storage tank showed it to be in a safe condition, the manager said.

Meanwhile, council accepted the June financial report showing the following balances:

General fund—$15,316.29; sewerage disposal fund—$2,153.06; Berger hospital fund—$3,438.06; auto street repair fund—$5,195.61; gasoline tax fund—$3,536.99; water works operating fund—$14,077.79; water works extension fund—$16,109.96; police pension fund—$110.70; and firemen's pension fund—$1,104.20.

The report showed $1,366 collected during the month of June from parking meters and $341.91 from the amusement tax.

Mayor Thurman I. Miller's report revealed $274.50 collected from fines; $25 for licenses; and $384 from traffic violations.

Judge Sterling M. Lamb in Pickaway County probate court has approved a petition for sale of property in the Eva G. Huffer estate.

The court's approval was in accordance with the Huffer will which stipulated the four tracts of land be sold and the proceeds be distributed among the heirs.

Approval was given at the request of M. C. Kirkwood, executor. Appraisal value of the property was estimated at $13,409.

Countians Pay $125 In Fines

Two Pickaway County men faced the court of Mayor Thurman I. Miller Tuesday and paid fines amounting to $125 and costs.

First of the offenders was Fay Chaney, 21, of near Williamsport, who paid the court $100 and costs after having been accused of drunken driving. The man was arrested on U. S. Route 23 by State Highway Patrolman C. E. Wells.

Other offender was George Leatherwood of Ashville, who paid $25 and costs to the court for reckless operation of his auto at the intersection of Main and Scioto streets. The Ashville man was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Carl Radcliff.

Rope-Climbing Cop Saves Man

COLUMBUS, July 7—Clifford L. Cordrey, 30, of Newcomers-town was still alive today, probably because of the acrobatics of Columbus Detective Sgt. Alfred J. Lashley.

Police called to a downtown Columbus bridge last night found Cordrey struggling in the waters of the Scioto river after what was to have been his death leap.

Lashley quickly clambered down a rope, grabbed Cordrey and held him until firemen could reach the pair with a boat.

Cordrey told police later he had been despondent because of ill health.

Navy Planning Columbus Center

COLUMBUS, July 7—Columbus city officials had a notification today that the U. S. Navy has let a $403,000 contract to a Warren construction firm to build a naval reserve training center at the confluence of the Scioto and the Olentangy rivers here.

Rear Admiral J. Carey Jones, commandant of the Ninth Naval District, Chicago, said the contract, calling for completion in 270 days, went to the Western Reserve Building Co.

The area, known as Rickenbacker Park, has been leased to the Navy for one dollar a year, renewable annually for 20 years.

DEATHS and Funerals

FRANK M. FRITSCH

Frank M. Fritsch, 84, former resident of Circleville, died Monday evening in his home in Hamilton.

He made a home in Circleville from 1900 to 1912 and operated the old Eagle Cooperage Co. He was inventor and manufacturer of a patented mop bucket.

He took his invention and moved to Hamilton and there, assisted by his son, Lawrence Fritsch, opened the Eagle Wood-ward Mfg. Co. for the manufacture of washing machines and other household devices.

In addition to his son, he is survived by his widow, a number of children and relatives. He was a member of St. Joseph's Catholic church here.

Funeral services probably will be held in Hamilton.

New Philadelphian Is Accepted As Music Teacher

Truman Eberly of New Philadelphia has been employed by the Circleville board of education to take over the high school music department, formerly headed by Charles F. Zaenglein, retired.

Eberly was offered the contract last week after Zaenglein severed connections with the school. Eberly's acceptance was given the board Tuesday night.

Another Circleville teacher submitted a resignation to the board Tuesday night. It came from Mrs. Evalina Wolford, who had taught the third grade of High Street school for the last two years. Mrs. Wolford, wife of the Rev. Roy Wolford, pastor of the Nazarene church here, said she had resigned her position to accompany her husband, whom she said had been reassigned.

BOARD MEMBERS approved a resolution to have various five-acre plots in the north end of the city measured off for a proposed new elementary school. Among the list of properties suggested by the board are the Goeller lot near the intersection of Atwater and Seyfert avenues and the Zwicker lot off Northridge Road. Measurements are to begin this week.

Other board business included the reelecting of Superintendent Frank Fischer and Principal J. Wray Henry to the same posts for next year.

Board members were given a report that the social rooms of the high school had been sound-proofed and were now suitable for classroom work, and that stone masonry had been ordered to replace present stonework on the front roof deck of the high school building.

Another Adverse Decision Seen

CLEVELAND, July 7—The federal government reportedly prepared today to file an appeal against another adverse decision in its patent litigation with the Cold Metal Process Co. of Youngstown.

Federal Judge Robert N. Wilkin ruled here yesterday that a total of $9,749,300 should be paid to Cold Metal by nine steel concerns in settlement of patent infringement claims.

It is considered likely the government would appeal the case to the sixth court of appeals in Cincinnati.

Observers Claim Democrat Bosses Killed Ike Boom

most independent forces within the Democratic Party.

As long as these forces were in the saddle, Eisenhower retrained from any further political comment which might have killed the boom. His intimates say that if by the ordinary processes of democracy, sentiment in his favor had resulted in an overwhelming and unanimous nomination by acclamation at Philadelphia next week he might have been prevailed upon to accept.

But those who knew the general best understood there were two conditions which would emphatically cement his refusal to countenance even such an overwhelming "draft."

1. If it meant a fight in the convention against President Truman for sufficient delegate strength to defeat Truman in the balloting. It was the hope of his adherents that once Eisenhower's true strength had been shown on the eve of the convention Truman would gracefully bow out and help to make the choice unanimous. Eisenhower had made it clear he would never stoop to a partisan fight with Truman for delegates' votes at the convention.

2. If the old line Democratic machine bosses sought to take control of his boom and use it to rebuild shaky political fences in their own communities.

What appears to have irritated Eisenhower most was the intimation that he could be used as a pawn in the coming convention to enable various local bosses to retain control of their political empires.

That primarily is what occasioned his statement of Monday night, slamming the door in the face of the latest Eisenhower boom.

Hubby Labeled As Wife-Beater

Dissolution of a six and one-half-year-old marriage has been petitioned in Pickaway County common pleas court by Betty Cookson whose petition claims her husband repeatedly beat her over the head.

Charles Cookson was named defendant in the suit which accuses him of gross neglect of duty and extreme cruelty.

The couple was married Nov. 22, 1941 in Circleville and they are the parents of two children, ages six and 10 months, her petition claims.

The court has been asked to grant her custody of the children, possession of the home furnishings in Ashville, alimony and support for the children.

Ike Boom Still Pushed

While anti-Truman leaders insisted publicly that Eisenhower has not yet closed the door and will yield to a draft, there was increased talk about other potential candidates to whom they might turn.

A Southern senator predicted privately that the Dixie delegates would not be enthusiastic about Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas whose friends reportedly have been making a bid for the Eisenhower support.

The name of Senate Minority Leader Barkley, (D) Ky., is being mentioned as a possible "unity" candidate.

Some anti-Truman delegates said privately that Barkley's nomination would heal party splits and, if he were defeated, would leave the party in good shape for 1950 congressional elections and the presidential fight of 1952.

ported but these may have been accidental. Air force officials say they were minor in nature.

The Soviet-controlled newspaper, Berliner Zeitung called today for a Big Four parley on the entire German problem and declared:

"If the German problem is solved the Berlin problem will no longer exist."

The possibility was seen meanwhile that the Russians may attempt curbs on the aerial lifeline of the Western Allies into Berlin.

Huffer Property Sale Ordered

Judge Sterling M. Lamb in Pickaway County probate court has approved a petition for sale of property in the Eva G. Huffer estate.

The court's approval was in accordance with the Huffer will which stipulated the four tracts of land be sold and the proceeds be distributed among the heirs.

Approval was given at the request of M. C. Kirkwood, executor. Appraisal value of the property was estimated at $13,409.

DEATHS and Funerals

FRANK M. FRITSCH

Frank M. Fritsch, 84, former resident of Circleville, died Monday evening in his home in Hamilton.

He made a home in Circleville from 1900 to 1912 and operated the old Eagle Cooperage Co. He was inventor and manufacturer of a patented mop bucket.

He took his invention and moved to Hamilton and there, assisted by his son, Lawrence Fritsch, opened the Eagle Woodward Mfg. Co. for the manufacturing of washing machines and other household devices.

In addition to his son, he is survived by his widow, a number of children and relatives. He was a member of St. Joseph's Catholic church here.

Funeral services probably will be held in Hamilton.

New Philadelphian Is Accepted As Music Teacher

Truman Eberly of New Philadelphia has been employed by the Circleville board of education to take over the high school music department, formerly headed by Charles F. Zaenglein, retired.

Eberly was offered the contract last week after Zaenglein severed connections with the school. Eberly's acceptance was given the board Tuesday night.

Another Circleville teacher submitted a resignation to the board Tuesday night. It came from Mrs. Evalina Wolford, who had taught the third grade of High Street school for the last two years. Mrs. Wolford, wife of the Rev. Roy Wolford, pastor of the Nazarene church here, said she had resigned her position to accompany her husband, whom she said had been reassigned.

BOARD MEMBERS approved a resolution to have various five-acre plots in the north end of the city measured off for a proposed new elementary school. Among the list of properties suggested by the board are the Goeller lot near the intersection of Atwater and Seyfert avenues and the Zwicker lot off Northridge Road. Measurements are to begin this week.

Other board business included the reelecting of Superintendent Frank Fischer and Principal J. Wray Henry to the same posts for next year.

Board members were given a report that the social rooms of the high school had been sound-proofed and were now suitable for classroom work, and that stone masonry had been ordered to replace present stonework on the front roof deck of the high school building.

Another Adverse Decision Seen

CLEVELAND, July 7—The federal government reportedly prepared today to file an appeal against another adverse decision in its patent litigation with the Cold Metal Process Co. of Youngstown.

Federal Judge Robert N. Wilkin ruled here yesterday that a total of $9,749,300 should be paid to Cold Metal by nine steel concerns in settlement of patent infringement claims.

It is considered likely the government would appeal the case to the sixth court of appeals in Cincinnati.

Observers Claim Democrat Bosses Killed Ike Boom

most independent forces within the Democratic Party.

As long as these forces were in the saddle, Eisenhower refrained from any further political comment which might have killed the boom. His intimates say that if by the ordinary processes of democracy, sentiment in his favor had resulted in an overwhelming and unanimous nomination by acclamation at Philadelphia next week he might have been prevailed upon to accept.

But those who knew the general best understood there were two conditions which would emphatically cement his refusal to countenance even such an overwhelming "draft."

1. If it meant a fight in the convention against President Truman for sufficient delegate strength to defeat Truman in the balloting. It was the hope of his adherents that once Eisenhower's true strength had been shown on the eve of the convention Truman would gracefully bow out and help to make the choice unanimous. Eisenhower had made it clear he would never stoop to a partisan fight with Truman for delegates' votes at the convention.

2. If the old line Democratic machine bosses sought to take control of his boom and use it to rebuild shaky political fences in their own communities.

What appears to have irritated Eisenhower most was the intimation that he could be used as a pawn in the coming convention to enable various local bosses to retain control of their political empires.

That primarily is what occasioned his statement of Monday night, slamming the door in the face of the latest Eisenhower boom.

Hubby Labeled As Wife-Beater

Dissolution of a six and one-half-year-old marriage has been petitioned in Pickaway County common pleas court by Betty Cookson whose petition claims her husband repeatedly beat her over the head.

Charles Cookson was named defendant in the suit which accuses him of gross neglect of duty and extreme cruelty.

The couple was married Nov. 22, 1941 in Circleville and they are the parents of two children, ages six and 10 months, her petition claims.

The court has been asked to grant her custody of the children, possession of the home furnishings in Ashville, alimony and support for the children.

vestigation today. "Then within 24 hours we should be in a position to decide whether to issue a formal complaint and ask the district court for an injunction."

ONCE THE complaint is issued—on charges filed by the steel industry that the union's 1948 contract violates the Taft-Hartley law—Denham then can appeal to a federal court for an order designed to end the work stoppage.

If issued, it would be the fourth injunction aimed at John L. Lewis and the miners in the past 20 months.

An estimated 35,000 workers in the pits which feed coal to the nation's steel mills failed to return from their annual 10-day vacation yesterday because they have no contract.

Arab Chief Pulls A Gromyko, Walks Out On UN Talk

Gromyko hastily advised Manuisky to have the vote on the question of overruling the chair.

On this procedural question, Britain, Syria, Canada, China and Belgium voted to overrule the chair. Manuisky insisted that a majority had failed to vote against him and he continued to refer to Eban as the spokesman for Israel.

Husseini thereupon arose and left the chamber. He said he would not return until the terminology used by Manuisky is abandoned.

A Southern senator predicted privately that the Dixie delegates would not be enthusiastic about Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas whose friends reportedly have been making a bid for the Eisenhower support.

The name of Senate Minority Leader Barkley, (D) Ky., is being mentioned as a possible "unity" candidate.

Some anti-Truman delegates said privately that Barkley's nomination would heal party splits and, if he were defeated, would leave the party in good shape for 1950 congressional elections and the presidential fight of 1952.

Observers Recall Warren Decisions In '44 And '48

WASHINGTON, July 7—Before everyone gets too fully engrossed in the Democratic high-jinks up at the City of Brotherly Love, it might be wise to wrap up a few footnotes about the last Philadelphia fanfare—namely the Republican convention.

Chief among such off-the-cuff comments, were the various references to the man who might have been President, but who instead was selected as the GOP choice for second place on the ticket—California's Gov. Earl Warren.

An eastern area publisher, who owns a couple of three papers and a radio station or two, was sitting in the press section when the Warrens appeared to receive the convention's nod and ovation. He said:

"They certainly are a fine-looking, open-faced family, aren't they? Looking at him, you almost wish he was heading the ticket, although I have nothing against Dewey. But what does anybody really know about Warren?"

IN A SENSE, both of his questions summed up the general reaction to the Republican's vice-presidential nominee. For, to a large extent, Earl Warren actually was the question mark of the conclave.

Unlike Taft and Vandenberg, he had no Washington background, and thus none of the national news-making facilities for reaching the majority of American families. Unlike Dewey (with whom he refused to run four years ago) he had neither the advertising advantage of a previous national campaign, nor the material aid of a well-organized political machine.

Unlike Stassen, he had not set out openly to campaign for the presidency a couple of years in advance, and unlike MacArthur he had no spectacular World War II and postwar background to keep him in the public eye, nationally speaking. His own war background was from private to lieutenant in the first fracas, all Stateside.

Finally, he had the additional handicap of not being trusted too far by the Republican king-makers because, out in California he at one time termed himself an "independent" and won both the Republican and the Democratic gubernatorial nominations!

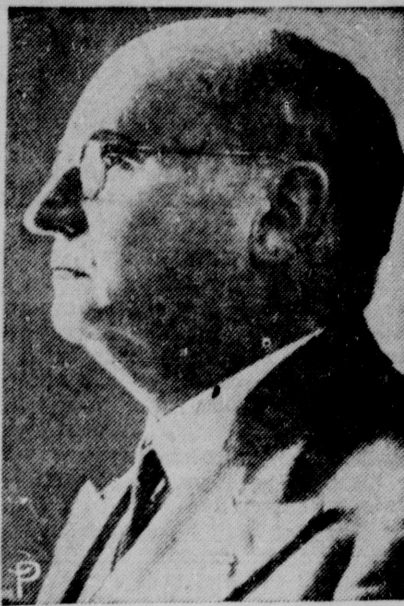

Although it definitely proved his vote-getting prowess, it hardly improved his standing with the rock-ribbed Republican element which, naturally, views with alarm anyone who shows a capacity for getting along too well with the enemy.

In short, the selection of Warren for a spot which has been viewed with increasing importance since the arrival of the current incumbent in the White House came as a bit of shock to many of the boys who usually know the score.

For one thing, they didn't think Dewey—whose critics often term him an extremely vindictive man—would forgive Warren for refusing to risk his future by running with the New Yorker against Roosevelt and Truman in 1944. But he apparently did.

AS FOR WARREN'S change of mind, that is simple of explanation. For one thing, in 1944, he didn't think he could be elected vice-president because he didn't think the Republicans could beat Roosevelt. And no one is more forgotten than yesterday's defeated vice-presidential candidate. If you don't believe that, try to name a few. This time, he thinks he can win.

For another, realizing his geographical value and vote-getting prowess, the Dewey boys put plenty of pressure on him. And they offered him a chance to make the vice-presidency a really vital position rather than a figure-head post.

Experts Using Water, Not Air, To Cool Corn

Cooling sweet corn directly after harvest "fixes" much of the sugar reducing the rate of its conversion to starch. This practice is now being carried on by some chain stores or their suppliers.

Growers might well investigate the possibilities of hydro-cooling (water cooling), especially those selling direct to retailers or consumers.

According to Donald Comin, horticulturist at the Ohio agriculture experiment station, water or hydro-cooling is many times faster than cooling by air in a cold storage room. Comin found that the kernels of a husked sweet corn ear cooled in an ice bath (60 to 40 degrees F.) in a matter of minutes, the average time being six minutes. The cooling rate is exceedingly rapid when the warm ear is plunged into the 32 degrees F. ice water and then falls off rapidly.

IN THE TESTS at the experiment station the kernels cooled to 34 degrees F. in about 15 minutes, while the center of the cobs reached 40 degrees in 24 minutes, and 34 degrees F. in 36 minutes.

*Corn cooled somewhat slower when the husks were left on, but here again hydro-cooling was many times more rapid than air cooling was many times more rapid than air cooling.

It was found advisable to keep the cooled ears in a cold room for otherwise the heat produced through respiration within the ear had a tendency to again raise its temperature, although this was a relatively slow process.

Comin believes that more vegetables should be cooled directly after harvest and then re-tailed in refrigerated cases as consumers are discovering the many advantages of produce refrigerated directly after it is harvested in the fields.

Self-Accused Murderer Eyed By Officers

CLEVELAND, July 7—Cleveland police held up their search today for a Dearborn, Mich., girl believed buried on a lake-front beach pending arrival of George Andrews, 32, self-accused murderer, from a Pennsylvania prison.

Detective Lt. David E. Kerr said a formal request has been made to Allegheny County officials for the return of Andrews to point out the spot where he admittedly strangled and buried the girl in February of 1946.

Andrews currently is serving a three-to-five year term for auto theft in the Blawnox, Pa., workhouse.

Andrews, who worked in Detroit, said he brought the 21-year-old girl to Cleveland after learning she was pregnant, and strangled her in an argument when she demanded that he marry her. He identified her only as Lorna. Detroit police still were checking in an effort to identify the dead girl.

For the 12 months ended in July, 1947, there were 33,700 traffic fatalities, the National Safety Council said.

THE PEAK OF PRICES

THE wholesale commodity price decline resulting from the spectacular market dip of last February now has been wiped out. Some individual items on the list remain at lowered prices, but the index of 900 commodities at wholesale, as reported by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, now is higher than last January.

The index for the week ended June 26 was only 0.3 per cent below the all-time high mark, which was set in May, 1920.

Thus it is finally demonstrated beyond question that the February commodity market break was not the beginning of a trend toward lower prices. No one can say whether the result might have been different if other downward pressure had immediately been applied to the price structure. But the pressures of the familiar wage-price spiral, government attitude and operations, and other influences have continued to be upward rather than downward. Accordingly the price level continues to rise.

The present peak in prices sets a post-war record, but there is no apparent reason for regarding that record as safe.

EARLY AVIATORS

A LITTLE known nation is commemorating four equally unheralded pioneers in aviation. The nation is Liechtenstein, a tiny independent state northeast of Switzerland and west of Austria, which has managed to preserve its independence for centuries.

Known chiefly to stamp collectors, it is announcing a new issue of postage stamps in honor of Otto Lilienthal, a German engineer who worked on plane motors in the '90's; Etienne Gaspard Robertson, who despite his English-sounding last name was a Frenchman, and who in 1804 ascended a mile and a half in a gas balloon; William Samuel Henson, an Englishman who in 1842 built an airplane, which incidentally did not work; and Salomon August Andree, the Swedish balloonist who set out for the North Pole in 1897. He never returned, and his frozen body was found in 1930.

By themselves these pioneers accomplished little. Their errors, however, may have shown later workers the means by which success might be attained. It is well to have them recalled, and Liechtenstein deserves credit for its enterprise.

One of our wise Americans has maintained that "it is better not to know so much than to know so many things that ain't so." But this generation is all cluttered up with too many things that ARE so.

A group of aborigines in the Jhore jungles have just learned the war is over. Presumably it didn't make much difference to them, anyway.

These Days

George E. Sokolsky's

The New Times, published in Moscow, tells us about the Henry Wallace campaign. It is good to get an American story from Moscow, particularly about Wallace. For instance, The New Times tells us why Wallace is running for the presidency:

"Wallace declared that in deciding to run for the presidency, and in launching the organization of an independent party, he was seeking a way out for broad sections of the American people who were gripped with 'confusion, uncertainty, fear' in the face of the threatening economic crisis and who were alarmed by the reckless foreign policy of the American government."

Perhaps the editors of this weekly could also tell us the nature of the "threatening crisis." Nobody sees any crisis in this country at the present time or in the near future. If anything, things seem to be pretty good. We are running on somewhere about $40,000,000,000 government expenditure and we have not gone broke yet nor rationed food nor are vast numbers unemployed. Something must have gone wrong with the crisis that Wallace has been talking about since he took the Moscow line, and that was long before he decided to run for the presidency—or was it?

This is how the Russians explain Wallace's difficulties:

"The efforts of Wallace and his supporters to unite America's progressive forces into a new party are meeting with obstacles in the shape of certain peculiarities of American democracy. In a number of states, for example, the law is so shaped as to secure a monopoly of the two Wall Street parties—Republican and Democratic—and to make the nomination of a progressive candidate virtually impossible. In other states, the registration of Wallace's candidacy will involve intricate formalities and heavy expenses. Again, Wallace's proposal for the creation of a new party is not approved by the leadership of American trade unions, including leaders of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, who feel that the nomination of a progressive candidate may lessen the chances for the reelection of Truman, whom they regard as a 'lesser evil' in comparison with such dyed-in-the-wool reactionaries as the probable Republican candidates — Taft and Dewey."

That is a long quotation but it does one's heart good. By the looks of it nobody wants Wallace except himself and his Moscow friends. Everybody is against the poor boy. The law is rigged against him; the labor unions won't have him. The Republicans and Democrats don't want him. "I don't want him; you can have him; he's too Guru for me"—or am I going Pegler?

I do not go for Henry Wallace because he seems to be confused about this essential problem, which is that Marxism is a reversion to human slavery to the State, which is bad no matter how beautiful the intellectual can paint the sweet by-and-by. The trouble is nobody knows when the sweet by-and-by will be—in 50 years, in a century or two or in remotely distant history. Karl Marx always denounced Utopians, but the best his adherents can give us is a Utopia in the future and slavery now.

The Russians are now saying that they invented radio, radar, the steam engine, penicillin and many other triumphs of progress. It is surprising that they have not claimed Adam and Eve as Russians, so as to get first credit for discovering the eating quality of the apple.

'Round The Virginias - - - Hour by Hour

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Away at what was supposed to be an early hour and was only 45 minutes late this being some kind of a record. Headed for Williamsburg that historic point that for years has been calling, but in a voice drowned out by the call of the Canadian wilds. Two female voices sounded the Williamsburg obligatory this year so we compromised and headed East instead of North.

Out 65 to Athens and then on through Parkersburg, tarrying only for a cool drink the sun having gone to work and the sun celebrating the Fourth. On, then to Clarksburg birthplace of Stonewall Jackson and supply depot for the Union army and headquarters for General McClellan in 1861 until the battle of Bull Run.

Southeast to Elkins and the Monongahela National Forest and on over the Alleghenies. Thirteenth time over the hills and the first to see them, all other trips having been made in the black of night. Impressive rises with most of the glories of mountain scenery, yet not in the same league with the Rockies or even the Little Big Horns. Roads about the same though. Back and forth, round and round and always with an extremely cautious and very frightened driver just ahead. Little or no passing because of the ups, downs and bends.

Next at Mouth of Seneca, population 50 and probably because of who would wish to say his home was in Mouth of Seneca. But there rises for 900 feet the Seneca rocks, beautiful, but to my eye failing to resemble cathedral ruins in Europe. Impressive enough in their own right and needing no comparison. Oh yes, there's a legend. The usual one. Bald Eagle, a Seneca chief, had the usual beautiful daughter, Baldy held a contest to decide his son-in-law, offering the hand of Snow Bird to the buck first scaling the rocks that Snow Bird is supposed to have been able to climb almost from the time she learned to walk. There the legend falls flat on its face, failing to name the victor. My entry in the derby is that great young redskin "Wot a Brain in His Head." Now, there is a supposedly easy way to the top, but I remained below. No room in the car for a squaw, not even Snow Bird. I've seen these "beautiful" Indian maidens. You can have 'em. I don't want 'em.

Next to Harrisonburg, cite of Madison college and the Eastern Menonite school. Two good hotels even though the town is only of 9,000 population. But, with the dining room closed, was unable to find a spot of good food. Misled by several signs noted on the way in. Made me hungry and the actual serving took away my appetite. At the edge of the George Washington National Forest of one million acres. Also in the Lee District, named in honor of Gen Robert E. Lee that includes the Massanutten mountain range extending through the center of Shenandoah valley from Harrisonburg north to Strasburg.

Southern weather, entirely too hot for one living on that cool knob south of Circleville. Finally did turn in, the better to yearn for those air conditioned rooms awaiting us at the Inn in Williamsburg. Nothing going amiss, tomorrow afternoon we will be there.

UNORTHODOX BIDS PAY

THERE are players who strenuously oppose unorthodox bidding at any time. They are the fellows who in golf would always try to hit the ball straight down the middle of the fairway and never try a cross-country short-cut in the effort to save a stroke. It may be that in the long run these tactics prove more profitable. But it is also undeniable that once in a while non-standard methods can pay handsome dividends to make up for what they lose on other occasions.

In the first sequence above is what was done by one able but conservative pair during the auction of this pair duplicate deal. The second sequence shows the bidding which won the tournament. There North felt that the contest was probably nip and tuck among his pair and several others, with only a couple of rounds left to go. It was his estimate that the result would probably be decided by no more than a few match points, possibly a fraction of a point. So he decided to seek some result other than that achieved by rival pairs. If it happened to be better, it could decide the issue. If it proved worse, well, his pair might not have won anyway.

With a diamond lead headed off by the bidding, East led his club 4 at Table 2. The 10 won that trick, the diamond 9 was sent through, the 8 fished, the A scored and a trick given up to the K. The spade Q was led to the A, the 3 to the K, dropping the J, and now North had established cards for the rest of the tricks to take eleven all told.

At Table 1, where bidding was standard, West led the unbid hearts. Normal play from there on resulted in the defenders getting tricks with the club Q, diamond K and spade A, so that the declarer scored only ten tricks. The slight difference gave the Table 2 pair top on the deal and victory in the tournament by exactly half of a match point.

DIET AND HEALTH

An Illness That's on Increase

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

TWENTY years ago, cases of infectious mononucleosis or glandular fever, were either seldom seen or more likely seldom diagnosed. It was only shortly before that time this disease was first described. Today, this illness appears to be on the increase, occurring both in single, scattered cases and in epidemic form. Though chiefly attacking children and young adults, it can occur at any age.

This disease is evidently due to some infection, probably with a virus. As yet there is little evidence to show how it is spread. There is some indication that it may enter the body through the throat and spread from there to the lymph glands in the neck, and thence to those in other parts of the body. Symptoms usually develop within from five to 15 days after the virus enters the body.

Several Types

Apparently there are several types of infectious mononucleosis. One, known as the glandular type, is most common in children. The outstanding symptom is the enlargement of the lymph glands in various parts of the body, especially in the neck.

In adolescents or young adults, there is inflammation of the membranes of the throat. In adults, fever is the most noteworthy symptom. In the latter, the lymph glands may or may not be enlarged and there is little or no inflammation of the throat. A diagnosis is often difficult to make in the adult because of lack of symptoms.

In over half of the patients, there is enlargement of the spleen located in the left, upper part of the abdomen. Sometimes there is also tenderness of the spleen. It is not unusual for abdominal pain to be present. The pain is probably due to swelling of the lymph glands within the abdomen. Often, there may be a skin rash made up of red spots like those which occur in measles.

White Blood Cells

In most patients with this condition, at first there is an increase in the count of white blood cells, known as the polymorphonuclear cells. Later, there is an increase in the type known as lymphocytes. In most cases, the disease runs a mild course with complete recovery in about six weeks, except in those instances in which some secondary infection occurs.

Unfortunately, there is still no satisfactory treatment. Sulfonamide drugs and penicillin have been employed but apparently with no great benefit. The giving of blood serum also doesn't seem to have any great value. Of course, the penicillin may be helpful in cases with complications.

The patient with infectious mononucleosis should be kept at rest in bed and given a well-balanced diet and plenty of fluids during an attack.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q. B. C.: Can breast cancer be present without any lump or pain?
Answer: A breast cancer could be present without pain. In practically all instances there is a swelling or lump.

Any suspicion of cancer calls for an immediate examination by a physician.

CHAPTER THIRTY-THREE
Andrew and Carol strode down the gently sloping meadow to the brook. The soft June air was clean and fresh in their nostrils. The hills stood out in the distance, in serried rows of blue, the great bowl of the sky sported its first cloud-wisps of the day. Andrew sniffed ecstatically.

"Isn't this a grand spot?" he said involuntarily.

"Oh, you don't have to tell it to me—you've already sold it to Gramps," the girl beside him said with poor grace. "Listen, I didn't really want to see your old cress bed—I wanted to talk to you. . . . Slow up a little."

Feeling distinctly repelled by her frankness, Andrew obediently slackened his pace, but his face hardened a little. "And you needn't look so darn' disapproving, either," she added. "I know you don't like me. I don't like you either, for that matter, but you're a man, and you're not a hundred years old, and that counts in your favor. . . . What I want is the low-down on Branfield. What is there to do here?"

"To do?" he asked with unaccustomed acidity. She smiled at him suddenly, an enchanting smile, as engaging and candid as a small child's, and in spite of himself—softened. "I don't quite know what you mean," he said. "There are winter sports in the winter, all around here, and there's tennis and hiking in the summer, and swimming over at Goose Lake, and—"

"Ugh! Sports!" She made a decisive, condemnatory gesture. "I loathe them. I mean, what's going on? Who gives the best parties, and where are the night clubs?" Andrew was aghast. "Night clubs?" he echoed. "In Branfield?"

The idea struck him as funny, and he laughed with laughter. "Well, there's the bar at the Lodge, but of course you know the New Hampshire laws—it's only open a few hours every day. I've forgotten when, because I've never been there. And there's the Welcome Diner on the other side of town. I've heard it said that you can get the proprietor to slip you a drink in off hours."

She seemed to brighten at that, and he added, "Nobody goes there but workmen and such, and farmers, perhaps. . . ."

She whirled on him. "You're making fun of me, and I won't have it!" She stamped her foot, and struck a stone. The thin sandals were soot protection, and she let out a cry of pain, and fell against Andrew.

Suddenly, when he caught her to keep her from falling, she burst into tears. "Oh, you're horrid!" she cried. "You're like all the rest of the fuddy-duddies around here! I thought you might be young enough to have some blood in your veins instead of buttermilk, but you're just as preachy and dull and—"

"Normal?" Andrew asked, the corners of his mouth twitching slightly.

"Well, whatever it is, I don't want to be it! she stormed. "I want to be different! I want to be like!"

Andrew sighed. "How about going to the movies tonight?" he asked. "There are some nice young people in this town, and maybe we'd meet some of them there. I'll be glad to introduce you around to the ones I know."

That was how Andrew started taking Carol places. Her grandfather was so grateful to him for taking her off his hands for a few hours, that he felt it was the least he could do. She wasn't a bad kid, really, just bored, and lonely, and with the urge to try everything forbidden as quickly as possible so that she could qualify as a "woman of the world."

He took her around with him to the next affair his own crowd was giving—a steak party at the Priests'. When it occurred to him that this would be a good chance to keep Carol amused for an evening, he had asked Helen if he might bring an extra girl.

"Sure," she said over the phone, with an air of humorous resignation. "Why not? I'm going to have another extra girl anyhow, why not two?"

But when he would have backed out, she indignantly refused to let him. "Bring her along," she said at once. "The other girl is only George's sister, Mary. She's been away, working in North Conway, and I guess you haven't met her, have you?"

"I didn't even know George had a sister," Andrew admitted.

"Well, there's not too good terms. Or, rather," Helen amended, as if seeking to have it just right, "Mary's not on good terms with the Campbells, and Brian Campbell is George's best friend, so you see. . . ."

Andrew didn't, but he did sense that there might be unpleasant undercurrents at the steak party. He made the real error of not telling Joan that he was bringing Carol, and apparently Alec had forgotten to mention it to her, too. So she was unprepared for the other girl. Carol eyed her calculatingly as Andrew handed her into the car. "Are you Andy's girl?" she asked at once.

The ready color flooded Joan's cheeks. She said in a cool voice, "Of course not."

Andrew sighed. "I wish you wouldn't sound so definite about it," he complained. "After all, some women might find me attractive," he added quickly, with a grin.

But his effort to keep it light did not succeed too well, and after they got to the Priests', matters were worse. Mary Roland was a slender, golden-haired girl, with a nervous, scintillating manner and rather theatrical looking clothes. She greeted Andrew most cordially. "I've been hearing the most marvelous things about you!" she cried. "Quite the boy-wonder!"

Lost 30 Pounds With THIS HOME RECIPE

Renel is the original grapefruit juice recipe for taking off ugly fat. It's simple. Just go to your drugstore and ask for 4 ounces of liquid Renel. Pour the contents into a pint bottle—add enough grapefruit juice to fill bottle. Then take just two table-spoonsful a day. That's all there is to it. If the very first bottle doesn't show you the simple, easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender, more graceful curves—if it reduces pounds and inches of excess fat—don't just seem to disappear almost like magic from neck, chin, arms, bust, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles, just return the empty bottle for your money back. You need never know a hungry moment while taking Renel—no starvation diet—no printed diet list to buy—no vitamins to fortify you against weakness while going hungry, for you WON'T be hungry.

Here is what Mrs. C. Horwede, 9618 Lander Ave., Cleveland, Ohio, says about Renel: "I have been taking your wonderful product for some time and plan to continue to take it as I have never felt better in my life and I am reducing the easy way. I have lost 30 pounds and am losing an average of 2 to 3 pounds a week." Don't be switched to another product, get genuine Renel.

Patricia Ruth Quincel
Becomes Mrs. James R.
Eitel Tuesday Evening

Rev. Fr. E. J. Reidy
Officiates At Rites

The Rev. Father, Edward J. Reidy officiated in the rectory of St. Joseph's Catholic church at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday for the marriage of Miss Patricia Ruth Quincel and James R. Eitel of Circleville.

The bride is a foster-daughter of Mrs. Emma Essick of East Mound street and the late Rev. Charles Essick. The bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Eitel of West Mill street.

An aqua gaberdine two-piece frock was selected by the bride for her wedding. It was designed with a bow of matching fabric in the back over a fish-tail peplum and short sleeves. She wore a miland straw hat trimmed in a large bow of ribbon and white veiling, lace edged gloves and white pigskin pumps. At her lapel she pinned a corsage of red roses and baby-breath. Her only jewelry was a rhinestone bracelet, a gift from the bridegroom.

Miss Jacqueline Anne Eitel, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor. She wore a honey-colored dress trimmed in white and used green and white accessories. Her flowers were pink carnations.

Jerry Mogan of West Water street served as best man.

Among the guests who witnessed the ceremony were Mrs. Norman Horkick and Gerald Horkick of Pontiac, Mich., and Mrs. William Mann of Westerville.

Both mothers, Mrs. Essick and Mrs. Eitel, wore tailored white and navy blue dresses respectively. Their flowers were red and white carnations.

The bride changed to a white dressmaker suit with accents of black and carried white accessories when they left on a wedding trip. Following their trip through the northern part of Ohio they will make a home at 424 East Mound street.

The new Mrs. Eitel was graduated by Circleville high school last June. She was a member of the band, SOS, Y-Teen and the Girl Reserves. She now is employed by the Hamilton-Ryan drug store.

The bridegroom also was graduated by the local high school. He now is associated with The Circleville Herald.

Ohio Raps 'Waste' In Rail Costs

U.S. Spending Too Much, Claim

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Rep. Bender, (R) Ohio, has charged that "of the $1-billion the government spends annually on freight transportation, probably $100 million is sheer waste."

Bender, chairman of a House investigating subcommittee, said "this staggering waste" is due to overpayments in freight charges resulting from inefficiency of government operation and the failure of federal officials to negotiate favorable rates.

The subcommittee on procurement and buildings held brief preliminary hearing on the matter just before Congress adjourned. The hearings will be resumed today and tomorrow.

Bender charged that the overpayments were in effect "a secret subsidy" to the railroads.

He expressed the hope the hearings will result in "a smoothly-running and at the same time economical traffic system" to handle all government freight.

HE SAID that on the eve of World War II "there were no less than 138 separate, inefficient, and uncoordinated agencies and departments of government handling traffic matters."

Henry H. Glasie, subcommittee chief counsel declared that although the government is the world's greatest shipper, its shipments are handled under an "outrageously wasteful and inefficient system."

Glasie revealed that the Association of American Railroads was invited to testify at the hearings "on the desirability of central traffic control, but they notified us that they decline to take a public position on this issue."

The subcommittee council said that in many instances lower rates could be obtained by the government merely by asking for them, but, he emphasized, this is not done.

The subcommittee stated that the railroads are now "in an excellent financial position" with the ICC estimating that the 1949 net railway operating income of Class I carriers will total $1,107,400,000.

Irgun Blamed For Kidnapping

LONDON, July 7.—The British foreign office said today that the Irgun Zvai Leumi, Jewish underground group, kidnapped five Britons from a Jerusalem building flying the UN truce commission flag last night.

A British spokesman said that the government takes a "most serious view" of the incident and assumes that the men will be released immediately.

He added that Sir Hugh Dow, British consul general, has protested the kidnapping to Jewish authorities.

Brothers Back After 'Trip'

COLUMBUS, July 7.—Two brothers, aged eight and 11, missing since yesterday morning, were back with their Columbus parents today.

Headed for Elwood City, Pa., Daniel and John Gilson got clear across town and about two miles outside the city limits before sheriff's deputies found them last night, using Pennsylvania road maps for pillows.

Asked if they were scared, Daniel answered: "Heck no, I got my cap pistols with me."

135 County Farms Working Conservation Programs

Twenty-eight farms comprising 4,255 acres of farmland, cooperated with the soil conservation district the first six months of 1948 bringing the total for the 2½ years the service has operated here, up to 135 farms and 22,940 acres of farmland.

Among the conservation practices established so far this year, contour operations were performed on over 400 acres. Pasture improvement occurred on 222 acres.

On 200 acres of "run out" pasture land, rejuvenation was done, consisting of disking, liming, fertilizing and reseeding. The planting of trees and improvement of farm wood lots occurred on 31 acres.

A total of 18,000 feet of tile drainage were installed on co-operating farms and two miles of major open drains were improved by dredging and straightening of water courses. Sod waterways were both established and improved to the extent of 14,000 lineal feet.

City Pondering Finance Plan

COLUMBUS, July 7.—The Columbus city council awaited today a five-year finance plan based on the city income tax.

Mayor James A. Rhodes announced last night the plan he said entails "a necessary, but not critical deficit for 1948." The mayor's plan would:

1. Revise pay schedules in all departments.
2. Pay off the city's one million 387 thousand dollar 1931-1937 back pay debt.
3. Liquidate $900,000 in Scioto river pollution suits.
4. Maintain all services at present levels this year and expand them next January.

The administration made its first announcement yesterday that the city would have a deficit this year in spite of the recently passed income tax.

Only Perry E. Conrad, 32, of Nova Scotia, a night watchman on the Osler, was injured enough to require hospitalization. He was badly cut on the head.

Ohioan Raps 'Waste' In Rail Costs

U.S. Spending Too Much, Claim

WASHINGTON, July 7—Rep. Bender, (R) Ohio, has charged that "of the $1-billion the government spends annually on freight transportation, probably $100 million is sheer waste."

Bender, chairman of a House investigating subcommittee, said "This staggering waste" is due to overpayments in freight charges resulting from inefficiency of government operation and the failure of federal officials to negotiate favorable rates.

The subcommittee on procurement and buildings held brief preliminary hearing on the matter just before Congress adjourned. The hearings will be resumed today and tomorrow.

Bender charged that the overpayments were in effect "a secret subsidy" to the railroads.

He expressed the hope the hearings will result in "a smoothly-running and at the same time economical traffic system" to handle all government freight.

HE SAID that on the eve of World War II "there were no less than 138 separate, inefficient, and uncoordinated agencies and departments of government handling traffic matters."

Henry H. Glassie, subcommittee chief counsel, declared that although the government is the world's greatest shipper, its shipments are handled under an "outrageously wasteful and inefficient system."

Glassie revealed that the Association of American Railroads was invited to testify at the hearings "on the desirability of central traffic control, but they notified us that they decline to take a public position on this issue."

The subcommittee council said that in many instances lower rates could be obtained by the government merely by asking for them, but he emphasized, this is not done.

The subcommittee stated that the railroads are now "in an excellent financial position" with the ICC estimating that the 1949 net railway operating income of Class I carriers will total $1,107,400,000.

Irgun Blamed For Kidnapping

LONDON, July 7—The British foreign office said today that the Irgun Zvai Leumi, Jewish underground group, kidnapped five Britons from a Jerusalem building flying the UN truce commission flag last night.

A British spokesman said that the government takes a "most serious view" of the incident and assumes that the men will be released immediately.

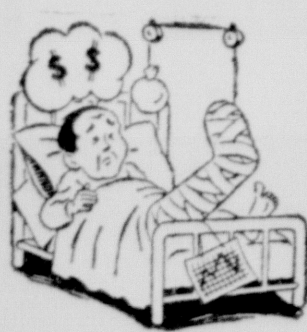

He added that Sir Hugh Dow, British consul general, has protested the kidnapping to Jewish authorities.

Brothers Back After 'Trip'

COLUMBUS, July 7—Two brothers, aged eight and 11, missing since yesterday morning, were back with their Columbus parents today.

Headed for Elwood City, Pa., Daniel and John Gilson got clear across town and about two miles outside the city limits before sheriff's deputies found them last night, using Pennsylvania road maps for pillows.

Asked if they were scared, Daniel answered: "Heck no, I got my cap pistols with me."

New Device Said Saver Of Silage

Study Underway On Air Pockets

"When you are making silage, keep out the air to keep in the good," says Charles F. Rogers of the department of agronomy at the Ohio agricultural experiment station.

Agronomists have been studying special ways to keep air out of the surfaces of silages.

Among other means under test are a number of designs of water-holding plastic "settlers" to squeeze out and to keep out the air from the top of silos.

The commonest means now generally in use is a layer of heavy wet green crops, cut fine and spread evenly over the surface to a final depth of at least one foot.

The easiest way so far found is the use of a water-and-air proof plastic sheet big enough to cover the whole top of silage and to give the necessary vertical contact with the silo wall.

THIS VERTICAL contact is a sealing band that keeps the air from going down the silo wall. Movement of air down the silo wall from the top is the cause of most of the spoilage found in silos at the time of opening for use.

The study of these water-holding devices has been under way for a year. There have been enough trials to promise saving of time in the conditioning and sealing of silos.

Time saved both in conditioning the surface and in handling top spoilage is important, in busy seasons. Then too there is the saving in feed.

Further studies are in progress to learn more about the proper way to shape and condition the top of silage in preparation for the installation of the settler and other moisture-air barriers.

The results to date indicate that the sooner any of them go on the shaped, tramped surface after chopping stops, the better they work. The settlers are not yet available commercially.

65-Foot Fall Does No Harm

MASSILLON, July 7—James Vidnich, 58, appeared none the worse today, despite a 65-foot fall from a Massillon viaduct yesterday into just three feet of water.

Massillon City hospital authorities said Vidnich apparently was uninjured in the fall. He was held for observation, however.

Two passersby, Victor Verarducci and Emmett Ayres, pulled Vidnich out of the Tuscarawas river where he landed. Police said he had been in ill health in recent months.

Kerr Winning In Oklahoma

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 7—Former Gov. Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma, an ardent supporter of President Truman, took a commanding lead today in the 10-man race for the Democratic nomination to the U. S. Senate.

Early unofficial returns gave Kerr a 2-1 lead over his nearest opponent, Gomer Smith, Oklahoma City attorney and former congressman.

At stake in yesterday's primaries were nominations for the Senate, all eight congressional seats, a half dozen state and all county offices of both parties.

Landis Suicide Brings Varied List Of Causes

HOLLYWOOD, July 7—The mystery of Carole Landis' suicide deepened today with friends and relatives advancing theories that her act was motivated by an eclipse in her film career, financial troubles, divorce from Husband No. 4, or an unsuccessful new love affair.

The screen beauty took her own life last Sunday night after dining in her sumptuous California Riviera mansion with British Actor Rex Harrison.

Harrison discovered her crumpled body in the bathroom of the star's palatial home. Her death was attributed to an overdose of sleeping pills.

Harrison, whose wife, Austrian-born Actress Lili Palmer, flew in from New York yesterday to join him—was quick to spike the gossip.

"Carole Landis was not in love with me. That is all gossip," the actress' mother, Mrs. Clara Landis, was positive her daughter had killed herself because of financial troubles. She insisted:

"MY BABY, Carole, had her troubles. She had married a rich man—but she was deep in financial trouble. She had sold her car, her home."

One autopsy surgeon, Dr. Irving Madoff, revealed the glamorous screen charmer could never have become a mother because of a "peculiar condition." He said that in all prob-

Teamsters Set 'Last' Parley

COLUMBUS, July 7—A "last ditch" negotiating session between representatives of approximately 600 Columbus teamsters and 55 trucking companies is scheduled for tomorrow night.

Leonard Newmarker, president of the AFL union, said that if the companies do not grant a 15-cent wage increase, union members will meet Sunday to take a strike vote.

He said the truckers have raised their original five-cent offer to 11 cents but indicated the union would hold fast in its demands, on the grounds that 15-cent increases already have been granted in Dayton and Akron.

By J. C. Oestreicher
INS Foreign Observer

The changeless permanence of the Moslem religion, a steadfast beacon to its followers despite war's political cleavage and the advancement of science, stands out today as a momentous factor in Palestine's faltering search for peace.

It is brought to the forefront of events because Count Folke Bernadotte's hard-won 30-day truce in the Holy Land is due to terminate Friday.

It is emphasized because neither Arabs nor Jews deem his peace proposals acceptable. Both are seizing upon every opportunity to accuse the "enemy" of true intentions.

There is no belittling the truth of these two angles connected with the Holy Land strife that prevailed at the time when Bernadotte undertook his incredibly difficult assignment as United Nations mediator a month ago.

FIRST, the newly-created state of Israel was truly a fledgling thing. Its first cabinet meeting was held in utmost secrecy. The world was led to believe it had assembled at the old temple city of Sarona instead of Tel Aviv as a ruse to ward off Arab bombing.

Second, there was firm belief among unofficial international observers that inter-tribal strife among the Arabs—jealousies and inherited hatreds in the ranks of their highest leaders—would mean that unorganized Israelis would be confronted by disorganized Moslems.

Both hypotheses were wrong. Israel has in point of fact evolved into a state already strong in legend and tradition and unquestionably formidable.

The Arab League, instead of collapsing under stress of internal dissension, still is presenting a united front.

It is an official recognition of now apparent solidarity on both the Arab and Jewish sides that has impelled official quarters in Washington and London to back Bernadotte's forceful measures in behalf of a truce extension for one more month at least.

The Swedish nobleman holds that "the door is still open."

HE HAS MADE known his readiness, even his anxiety, to continue his efforts for a final peace until the last date upon which he will operate legal-

New Device Said Saver Of Silage

Study Underway On Air Pockets

"When you are making silage, keep out the air to keep in the good," says Charles F. Rogers of the department of agronomy at the Ohio agricultural experiment station.

Agronomists have been studying special ways to keep air out of the surfaces of silages.

Among other means under test are a number of designs of water-holding plastic "settlers" to squeeze out and to keep out the air from the topfill of silos.

The commonest means now generally in use is a layer of heavy wet green crops, cut fine and spread evenly over the surface to a final depth of at least one foot.

The easiest way so far found is the use of a water-and-air proof plastic sheet big enough to cover the whole topfill and to give the necessary vertical contact with the silo wall.

THIS VERTICAL contact is a sealing band that keeps the air from going down the silo wall. Movement of air down the silo wall from the top is the cause of most of the spoilage found in silos at the time of opening for use.

The study of these water-holding devices has been under way for a year. There have been enough trials to promise saving of time in the conditioning and sealing of silo topfills.

Time saved both in conditioning the surface and in handling top spoilage is important, in busy seasons. Then too there is the saving in feed.

Further studies are in progress to learn more about the proper way to shape and condition the topfill in preparation for the installation of the settler and other moisture-air barriers.

The results to date indicate that the sooner any of them go on the shaped, tramped surface after chopping stops, the better they work. The settlers are not yet available commercially.

65-Foot Fall Does No Harm

MASSILLON, July 7—James Vidinich, 58, appeared none the worse today, despite a 65-foot fall from a Massillon viaduct yesterday into just three feet of water.

Massillon City hospital authorities said Vidinich apparently was uninjured in the fall. He was held for observation, however.

Two passersby, Victor Verarducci and Emmett Ayres, pulled Vidinich out of the Tuscarawas river where he landed. Police said he had been in ill health in recent months.

Kerr Winning In Oklahoma

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 7—Former Gov. Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma, an ardent supporter of President Truman, took a commanding lead today in the 10-man race for the Democratic nomination to the U. S. Senate.

Early unofficial returns gave Kerr a 2-1 lead over his nearest opponent, Gomer Smith, Oklahoma City attorney and former congressman.

At stake in yesterday's primaries were nominations for the Senate, all eight congressional seats, a half dozen state and all county offices of both parties.

YOUNG MANHATTANITES thumb their noses at New York's current heat wave as they use a dock on the East River as a diving board. One boy seems to be practically walking on the water as the camera stops the action. The thermometer was up to 92.1 degrees. (International)

Landis Suicide Brings Varied List Of Causes

HOLLYWOOD, July 7—The mystery of Carole Landis' suicide deepened today with friends and relatives advancing theories that her act was motivated by an eclipse in her film career, financial troubles, divorce from husband No. 4, or an unsuccessful new love affair.

The screen beauty took her own life last Sunday night after dining in her sumptuous California river mansion with British Actor Rex Harrison.

Harrison discovered her crumpled body in the bathroom of the star's palatial home. Her death was attributed to an overdose of sleeping pills.

Harrison, whose wife, Austrian-born Actress Lili Palmer, flew in from New York yesterday to join him—was quick to spike the gossip.

"Carole Landis was not in love with me. That is all gossip." The actress' mother, Mrs. Clara Landis, was positive her daughter had killed herself because of financial troubles. She insisted:

"MY BABY, Carole, had her troubles. She had married a rich man—but she was deep in financial trouble. She had sold her car, her home."

One autopsy surgeon, Dr. Irving Madoff, revealed the glamorous screen charmer could never have become a mother because of a "peculiar condition." He said that in all prob-

Teamsters Set 'Last' Parley

COLUMBUS, July 7—A "last ditch" negotiating session between representatives of approximately 600 Columbus teamsters and 55 trucking companies is scheduled for tomorrow night.

Leonard Newmarker, president of the AFL union, said that if the companies do not grant a 15-cent wage increase, union members will meet Sunday to take a strike vote.

He said the truckers have raised their original five-cent offer to 11 cents but indicated the union would hold fast in its demands, on the grounds that 15-cent increases already have been granted in Dayton and Akron.

ability Miss Landis herself was not aware that motherhood would have been forever denied her.

The family hoped funeral arrangements could be made this week and that Catholic rites will be granted the screen star.

In View Of The News

By J. C. Oestreicher
INS Foreign Observer

The changeless permanence of the Moslem religion, a steadfast beacon to its followers despite war's political cleavage and the advancement of science, stands out today as a momentous factor in Palestine's faltering search for peace.

It is brought to the forefront of events because Count Folke Bernadotte's hard-won 30-day truce in the Holy Land is due to terminate Friday.

It is emphasized because neither Arabs nor Jews deem his peace proposals acceptable. Both are seizing upon every opportunity to accuse the "enemy" of truce infractions.

There is no belittling the truth of these two angles connected with the Holy Land strife that prevailed at the time when Bernadotte undertook his incredibly difficult assignment as United Nations mediator a month ago.

FIRST, the newly-created state of Israel was truly a fledgling thing. Its first cabinet meeting was held in utmost secrecy. The world was led to believe it had assembled at the old temple city of Saronia instead of Tel Aviv as a ruse to ward off Arab bombing.

Second, there was firm belief among unofficial international observers that inter-tribal strife among the Arabs—jealousies and inherited hatreds in the ranks of their highest leaders—would mean that unorganized Israelis would be confronted by disorganized Moslems.

Both hypotheses were wrong. Israel has in point of fact evolved into a state already strong in legend and tradition and unquestionably formidable.

The Arab League, instead of collapsing under stress of internal dissension, still is presenting a united front.

It is an official recognition of now apparent solidity on both the Arab and Jewish sides that has impelled official quarters in Washington and London to back Bernadotte's forceful measures in behalf of a truce extension for one more month at least.

The Swedish nobleman holds that "the door is still open."

HE HAS MADE known his readiness, even his anxiety, to continue his efforts for a final peace until the last date upon which he will operate legalistically as the chosen judge of what is the basis of a settlement that will be a mere political strawman to serve the quick ends of any opportunistic group or individual.

And his recommendation—accepted or rejected as they may be—point up an undeniable fact that is often forgotten: The issue in the Holy Land today is not of the moment alone, but for the whole foreseeable future.

Estimated 50 Countians To Get Peacetime Draft Call

Judges Give 3 Names For Local Board

Registration Due About Aug. 16

If unofficial estimates are correct, about 50 Pickaway County men will be called into uniform in the first peacetime draft period which is scheduled to begin with registrations about August 16.

Meanwhile, organization of a new draft board similar to that which served Pickaway County during World War II, is underway.

Common Pleas Judge William D. Radcliff and Probate Judge Sterling M. Lamb already have recommended three names to Adjutant General Chester W. Gobles to serve on the county draft board.

Neither of the two officials were able to divulge whether the state would act on their recommendations nor were they at liberty to disclose the names of their recommendations.

During the war Pickaway County was served with a five-man board. Since the report which was handled by the two judges was labelled by the government as a strict secret, it could not be learned whether any former board members would be recalled to serve the draft.

IT WAS emphasized that all recommendations on the formation of the new board was done at the request of Gobles.

As of Wednesday, procedure of establishing a draft board in Pickaway County was undetermined. All former officials who were connected with drafting during World War II were unable to supply any additional information.

This much, however, has been released from official offices in Washington.

Registration of all men 18 through 25 is expected to get underway about Aug. 16. Draftees actually will not leave until Sept. 22 or after, latest reports indicate.

If drafting is carried out as it was during the last war on a population basis, Pickaway

Veteran Sailor Loses Cruiser

CLEVELAND, July 7—Except for a damaged pride, Arthur L. Cavar, 52, was apparently uninjured following his narrow escape from the swirling waters of Lake Erie last night.

Cavar's 31-foot cruiser stalled shortly after he put out from Cleveland Yacht Club. High wind and breakers drove the craft aground at the foot of a 75-foot cliff in suburban Lakewood.

Cavar, an amateur sailor 37 years, leaped from the boat and was pulled to safety by Lakewood firemen who were summoned when the yachtman sounded his fog horn and blinked his running lights.

Ohioan Directs New U.S. Station

BERLIN, July 7—A new 75,000-watt radio station in the American sector of Berlin was under the direction today of a former Columbus resident, William Friel Heimlich.

The U. S. military government opened the station known as RIAS, yesterday, to beam its program all over Europe.

Heimlich left the intelligence branch of the Berlin command last October with the rank of colonel, to take a civilian post with the occupation forces.

County will have a quota of about 50 men during the first period.

Estimated first reports say 12,500 Ohioans will be called to the colors. The Pickaway County figure is based on one man of every 323 among Ohio's 12,500 potential draftees.

LOCAL OFFICIALS declared, however, that they had no assurances that the draft would be carried out on any similar basis with that of World War II.

Miss Ruth Moffitt, secretary for the board during the last draft, said Wednesday she had received no word from Columbus or Washington on the possibility of serving in the same capacity again.

Judge Radcliff and Judge Lamb both admitted that they have been kept as much in the dark as the rest of the public but they were expecting some official notification in the near future on work to be done here.

of casualties or major damage. The quake, which stopped clocks, struck at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon.

It came nine days after the disastrous quake in Fukui province of Western Japan that caused thousands of casualties and made hundreds of thousands homeless.
